Sheehan Forensic Accounting and Litigation Support Services

Overview

Over the last several years, the frequency of employing litigation to resolve conflicts has dramatically increased. Assistance from Sheehan & Company's highly qualified team of litigation support consultants will help you to minimize the frustrations associated with any lawsuit.

We offer valuable advice to counsel for plaintiffs and defendants and serve in the capacity of both expert witnesses and consultants. Judges and jurors respect our practical experience and appreciate our ability to explain complex matters in an understandable fashion. Attorneys welcome our professional demeanor, integrity and objectivity. As CPAs, we have the specialized skills to evaluate complicated financial data and the expertise to prepare comprehensive analysis designed to identify and quantify economic damages.

Our litigation support consultants assist counsel in preparing for trial or settlement. As consultants, we are trained to look beyond the numbers and consider the realities of each situation, and our involvement is often essential in determining the case's strengths and weaknesses and in developing appropriate strategy.

We begin with careful strategic analysis and then apply our world-class resources to deliver comprehensive and objective results.

Litigation Support Services

When financial, accounting, tax and investigative issues are involved in litigation, a seasoned team of experts can be crucial to your case. The specialists at Sheehan & Company use in-depth forensic knowledge, current resources and professionalism to provide the winning edge throughout case negotiations.

Our litigation support consultants will provide the framework of your case, enhance discussion and debate, and assist in dispute resolution.

We have experienced, competent staff who can compile information efficiently to assist in the calculation and documentation of any potential economic loss or damages.

Forensic Accounting

We uncover the facts. The professionals at Sheehan & Company utilize accounting, auditing and investigative skills to analyze financial records in connection with dispute resolutions, fraud investigations and other services where the outcome may be determined in a court of law. Our consultants have strong backgrounds in both audit and technology and are able to communicate findings in a manner which is clear, organized and properly supported with evidence.

Business Valuations

Whether you are considering the purchase of a new business or the transfer of a family business to the next generation, determining the appropriate value is crucial to every transaction. Valuation issues also arise during difficult divorce cases. The professionals at Sheehan & Company have experience and training in valuation theory and its application. We also possess the ability to properly identify the relevant tax and accounting issues associated with every transfer.

Our professionals provide you with an advantage, whether it's in the form of routine assistance, or as an expert witness.
